SOME COMPLAINT of "too much airplane defense" in this column. Did they notice the short message that England and France sent to Germany?

It warned Germany that if it showed a hostile attitude toward the COMBINED AIR FLEETS of France and England would surround Germany, and actually, if necessary, wipe out her cities.

The message, inviting Germany by implication to enter the League of Nations, talked about France and England's FIGHTING AIR FLEETS, only.

Nothing was said about surface ships or marching soldiers. Intelligent European countries know that they will count for little in future wars.

This country has army and navy management that seems not to have discovered that the airplane exists, and actually flies.

Fortunately, the President possesses that information, and, according to those that should know his views, he does not propose to leave this country unprotected in the air, on either coast. The President does nothing in a small way, and when he makes up his mind that it is time for this country to have an air fleet, it will have a REAL AIR FLEET.

Senator Huey Long, a public character, stepped from a train in Louisiana. Leon Trice, a photographer for the Associated Press, took a picture. Senator Long, according to the Associated Press dispatch, said to his huge bodyguard, Joseph Messina:

"Do anything you want to with him, Joe."

Messina struck twice, a small man, in the mouth, knocked him down, then, with a blackjack, knocked him unconscious.

Kent Cooper, who runs the Associated Press, will persuade "Joe" that he blackjacked the wrong man.

The senator may say: "I am amazed at my own moderation."

Any other dictator would have made him drink a quart of castor oil.

In Georgia's House of Representatives, Huey Long was cheered as he talked of "sharing the wealth," while two state senators of Georgia visited President Roosevelt apologizing for the invitation to Long.

Of his taxation plans, Senator Long said:

"If you can make a million dollars a year, you can keep it. If you make two millions a year, there will be a tax levy of one per cent, and on up to one hundred per cent, which will take everything."

Some conclude that the senator must be making "a million a year."

Senator Long shouts at Georgia's representatives:

"My plan would bring in one hundred and fifty billions tomorrow."

Georgia's representatives cheered. If Senator Long could carry out his plan and be elected President, on a "share the wealth" basis, he might have a "let of fun" with the one hundred and fifty billions, while they lasted.

At Cleveland, Miss., a Negro who confessed to stealing bodies from graveyards, and stealing "the skulls of several women" from graves in Michigan, was tried for the murder and subsequent mutilation of Mr. and Mrs. Aurelius L. Turner.

Mississippi does not believe in laws delays, and, under certain conditions, does not consider legal formalities necessary.

The accused man, manacled, was taken to Cleveland, Miss., for trial in a "lynch-proof" baggage car, attached to a special train, two hundred soldiers heavily armed, wearing steel helmets, on board the train.

The courthouse, where the accused man was tried, is protected by machine guns and barbed wire entanglements. Six hundred soldiers surrounded it.

Those who do not understand the feelings that cause bitter determination to lynch without waiting for law, under the pretext of a certain kind, are misled by all this preparation to defend one Negro.

President Roosevelt must be hardened to complaints by this, but Zion's Herald, weekly newspaper, published by the Methodist Church in New England, finds a complaint interestingly new.

The Zion's Herald editor accuses President Roosevelt of practically forgetting God in his attempts to bring back prosperity. The editor is disappointed at "having no call to prayer from the pen of a President of the United States, and impressed with the crying need of such a summons at a time like this," Zion's Herald reprints President Lincoln's prayer and

SON

Of 'John F.' DEAD

SUCCUMBS TO HEART ILLNESS

Frederick H. Fitzgerald, youngest son of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, died today at his home, 317 Tappan terrace, Brookline.

Death, according to the former mayor, who arrived at the house half an hour after his death, was due to heart failure.

Young Fitzgerald had been under treatment for several weeks by Dr. John A. Foley of 464 Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay.

Fitzgerald's wife, the former Rosalind G. Miller, once a Cambridge school teacher, said she went shopping during the morning and arrived home shortly after 11 a. m. Unable to arouse her husband, she asked the telephone operator to call a physician in emergency. A priest was also summoned.

Dr. Edward Kaplan, of 134 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, responded as soon as he received the message but young Fitzgerald was dead when he arrived.

Former Mayor Fitzgerald said that his son had intended going to a theater in Boston last night with his wife, but was stricken with a heart attack and compelled to go to bed.

Fitzgerald was employed, at the time of his death, by the New England Supply Company at 88 Broad street. Previously he had been in the automobile business in Newton.

He attended Worcester Academy and Notre Dame University and in 1928 married the former Miss Miller, teacher of Americanization in the Cambridge public schools.

Wood Expert Stands Fire

Describing himself as a "student" of wood and lumber, not an expert, Charles De Bisschop, above, a Hauptmann defense witness, left the stand today unshaken in his testimony that a board from the Hauptmann attic was not used in the Lindbergh kidnap ladder.

Today's Testimony

Following is today's testimony in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case, the 28th day of the trial. Charles J. De Bisschop, Connecticut lumberman, resumed the stand for re-direct examination.

Attorney Frederick A. Pope, wood expert of the defense lawyers, was late and finally came walking into the courtroom.

PLACED BY TWO IN NEW YORK CITY

On Night of Kidnap

DEFENSE RESTS AFTER WITNESS TELLS OF PAIR WITH LADDER

By International News Service

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 8.—An alibi for Isidor Fisch on the night of March 1, 1932—the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped—was established this afternoon by state rebuttal witnesses, Elmer Levenson and Mrs. Henry Jung.

Levenson testified that on that night he was in the home of Henry Jung in New York city and that Fisch was there. Mrs. Jung corroborated Levenson's statement.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 8.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today rested his defense against the charges that would send him to the electric chair for the kidnaping and murder of baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The defense ended its case at 12:10 p. m., after sensational testimony designed to place the Lindbergh kidnap ladder in the possession of a woman and a man other than Hauptmann 24 hours before the crime.

The defense also used two practical lumber men to dispute the testimony of a state wood expert that part of the kidnap ladder came from Hauptmann's Bronx attic.

After the second one had testified, Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, announced loudly:

"The defense rests!"

The state immediately began rebuttal with Joseph J. Farber, a New York insurance man, on the stand.

His testimony was sought to refute that of Benjamin Heyer, a defense witness, who said he saw Isidor Fisch long over a Bronx cemetery wall wire and when the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was paid.

Rebuttal testimony, filling station owner and Princeton graduate, testified he saw and examined the kidnap ladder at 1:10 a. m. March 1, 1932—about 20 hours before the kidnapping.

The state was at its filing station. He said to be surprised with gasoline, and its occupants were a man and a woman.

Hauptmann's attorney, heightened the drama of their surprise by calling upon the defendant to answer.

"Stand up, Mr. Hauptmann," cried Frederick A. Pope of defense counsel.

"Why describe it?" he asked. "Is that the man?" Pope swept his hand toward the waiting defendant.

"Positively not," said Botmer. He seemed to be a student to describe the ladder, was a gesture toward the kidnap ladder in court. "Why describe it?" he asked. "I saw that ladder there."

"Now while I am on my feet with the ladder, did you actually, physically touch the ladder yourself?" he asked.

"I did not," he said. "I did three times," he said. "Did you have a good chance to look at it?"

Attorney General David T. Williams asked only one cross-examination question.

"Did you ever report the matter to the state police?"

"I did not," he said.

Hauptmann's attorneys then brought out that the reason he did not report the matter was because the pictures of the ladder he saw in the newspapers depicted it as extended and he could not see it. He added that he did not want to make a fool of myself.

Charles J. De Bisschop, contractor, testified that he saw the ladder on the night of March 1, 1932, at the home of the defendant, Isidor Fisch, in the Bronx. He said that such trees have more knots near the base than toward the top. He said that the state chair had told him that the ladder floor board, from which the state chair had told him that the ladder floor board had been sawn, had fewer knots than the rest. The rail was used as an upright in one end of the three sections of the ladder.

tries to De Blasech. The witness put two sections of the little North Carolina pine and to end and held them up. The whole trunk there are more than 15 feet and on the top were bristling green needles. Wilentz objected to the illustration, saying the boards in the case could not possibly have come from the skin-looking tree the witness was trying to put up.

Over the objections of Wilentz, De Blasech was permitted to use the tree to illustrate his statement that in North Carolina pine there are more knots in the butt of a tree than in the upper part.

This would tend to lead one to the contention that "rail 16" of the kidnap ladder and the board from Hauptmann's attic could not have come from the same part of a tree, because there were never part of a single board.

Referring to the attic board, Pope asked if this board lay in the attic for several years, would there be a mark underneath the board where it met the joist?

Markings Every 16 Inches

The witness said there should be markings every 16 inches. De Blasech pointed out yesterday that there were no knots in the attic board and only three in "rail 16". Taking the little tree this morning, the witness pointed to it and said:

"I'll show the difference between a butt end and a top cut. You see there are more knots in a butt end than in a top cut. This is always true of North Carolina pine."

The jury listened intently to the homespun lecture by the lumber man. "If this board was nailed over pins to the joists with square cut nails for a couple of years could it be removed without leaving some marks from a pry bar or a loosening chisel?" A-No, it would leave marks of some kind.

Q-Do you see any marks of a bar or nail extracting tool or hammer shown on this board (the board to which was connected with a joint)? A-No marks are there. The only one is where the nail was driven in by a hammer.

Re-Cross-Examination

Attorney-General Wilentz cross-examined De Blasech. The jury watched both men with interest.

Q-You say this board was never nailed to a joist? A-No evidence of it having been taken up.

Q-You want to carry to this jury the impression that this attic board was never nailed down to the joist? A-No, sir.

Q-So you want to say it wasn't nailed down? A-No.

Q-So far as you know it might have been nailed down? A-It might have been.

Q-You said yesterday that in the attic board and the rail there were six penny and eight penny cut nails? A-Yes.

The witness was shown a six-inch and an eight-inch nail, the identical ones he had admitted in evidence.

Showing the witness the eight penny nail, Wilentz asked him if he would say it was never used in either the kidnap ladder or the attic board.

"Not this nail," replied De Blasech.

When Wilentz asked "Why not?" the witness said:

"Because no marks are on it and no nail could be taken out in as straight a shape as this."

New Spills in The Boards

Wilentz asked:

"Would it surprise you to know that this nail did come from this board?"

De Blasech pondered a moment and then said:

"It would be awfully surprised."

Wilentz became quite persuasive. With boards in his arms the attorney general asked questions at him.

Pope, on re-direct examination, had brought out that some of the matched boards he had offered in evidence yesterday had some "spits" in them.

De Blasech told the witness that was probably due to the fact that the boards were left in a warm place overnight.

Wilentz showed:

"Do you mean to say these splits appeared in the boards overnight?"

"Yes," said the witness. "When the wood is left in a warm place splits sometimes appear in an hour."

The pieces of board were shown to the jury.

Wilentz tried to infer that De Blasech had cut his pieces of "matched wood" from the same piece of board.

Q-Did you watch your man when he cut these samples? A-Yes.

Q-Well, now, isn't it a fact you cut these two samples from the same piece of wood? A-I did not.

The post-captured nursery man admitted the answer emphatically.

Wilentz told the boards over to the jurors and had them look over carefully. The attorney-general had a pencil in his hand as he was doing this and Pope called out:

Warns Wilentz Not to Mark Them

"Don't draw any lines on those boards," Wilentz assured him he would not.

By producing the matched wood, the defense was trying to create the impression it would be easy to find a board to match "rail 16" of the kidnap ladder.

This would destroy the credibility of the state's evidence. Arthur Koehler, that he traced "rail 16" right to Hauptmann's attic.

"That's all," said Wilentz, finally.

Pope arose and handed the witness a nail. De Blasech identified it as a floor nail different to one Wilentz had shown the witness.

The defense lawyer had the nail introduced as evidence.

Q-Is the Pope-New, I want to ask you a few questions about these two boards. Are the saw cuts on the flat sides the same? A-No.

Q-Then, these pieces must have come from different boards, didn't they? A-Yes.

Again, the footling pieces of board were handed to the jury. They say of putting interest to the jury's readiness in answering.

"Don't be so free with your talk," Justice Trenchard warned the witness.

Wilentz asked Koehler if he had seen a "Dodge Suburban" with a "bullet" on the floor that night and Bolmer said "No."

Q-You didn't see a Dodge with a ladder in it? A-No.

Q-You saw a Ford with a ladder bolted to the side of it? A-Yes.

Wilentz asked Bolmer to know why the surprising witness had not "noticed" the ladder.

"I never saw the real ladder," Bolmer said.

Q-You want to make a fool of me? A-I want to make a fool of myself. From all the things I had read of the ladder, I thought it would be a big one. This one on the car was small and needed there.

"That's all," said Wilentz and Bolmer was excused.

Lumber Man Takes The Stand

Ewald Mielke, 65, a gray-haired, gray-mustached man from Lindenbury, N. J., took the stand.

He testified he owns his own small lumber mill in a pattern maker, planer, joiner and carpenter.

There was considerable argument over his qualifications as an expert witness.

The witness was finally permitted to testify that he proceeded to back-fire on the defense counsel when he admitted he could not pass an opinion as to whether the board from Hauptmann's attic one was part of "rail 16" of the kidnap ladder.

Mielke said, however, that "as an observer" he had found there are more knots in North Carolina pine than in the butt of the tree than in the top.

(By Pope)-Will, can you tell where this attic board is from? A-Yes. It came from the top of the tree. If it came from the bottom there would be more knots.

Pope then placed the ladder and the attic board in front of the jury. Pope asked:

Difference in Two Boards

"Is there a difference in the attic board and 'rail 16'?"

"Yes," said the witness, "there is more life in the attic board, and there is a difference in the shape of the knots."

Wilentz was objecting to almost every question and Justice Trenchard left the bench and joined the lawyers in front of the jury so he could better observe the proceedings.

Pope asked:

"Do you think the attic board and 'rail 16' have ever part of one and the same board?"

Wilentz argued that the witness was not qualified as an expert in matching pine in this answer was ordered stricken.

Asking the witness to answer, not as an expert in matching grain, but as an experienced lumber man.

Differ Because Of Pressure

Wilentz again objected, arguing for several minutes, but Mielke was permitted to answer. He said:

"Those two pieces (the attic board and 'rail 16') are not pieces of one board."

Mielke was then handed the cheap, wooden carpenter's plane found in Hauptmann's garage.

Asked if the plane would leave different "plane marks" on wood if pressure was applied in different ways, he said the marks would differ.

Pope then handed him the pieces of board introduced earlier by De eleven—my height—and his face was thin. His hair was dark and he had a mustache. Two, no mustache. He weighed 132 pounds, no, about 135 or 140 pounds.

Bolmer was asked if he had seen any pictures that he recognized as the man he saw and he replied "Yes."

He was shown a picture of Edgar Fisch.

"This is not the man," said Bolmer.

Q-How much opportunity did you have to look at the body? A-I looked at her once.

Q-When you saw her to identify her if a picture was shown you? A-I would not.

Cross-Examination

Wilentz, on cross-examination, asked Bolmer if he had ever reported the matter to the New Jersey police and the witness said "No."

When Wilentz shouted, "Why didn't you?" Bolmer replied:

"I didn't identify the description given me of the ladder. The picture of the ladder showed it was extended and I didn't think it was the same ladder and I didn't want to make a fool out of myself."

Q-But you saw the ladder later. Was it the same ladder? A-It was.

"You're too anxious," Wilentz shouted, reproving the witness for his readiness in answering.

"Don't be so free with your talk," Justice Trenchard warned the witness.

Wilentz asked Bolmer if he had seen a "Dodge Suburban" with a "bullet" on the floor that night and Bolmer said "No."

Bishop. Pope asked if the sawed markings on the boards were different.

After Wilentz's objection was overruled, the witness said:

"The saw markings are different."

The witness also said one board was thinner than the other.

This line of testimony was calculated to support De Blasech's testimony against Wilentz's insinuations that De Blasech had cut his "matched samples" from the same board.

On cross-examination, Wilentz asked:

"The extent of your examination of these boards and the ladder was the short time you looked at them yesterday—isn't that right?"

"That is all," Wilentz said. The witness was excused.

State Opens in Rebuttal

Attorney Reilly then announced that the defense rested and after a few minutes the state called, in rebuttal, Joseph J. Carbor.

Farber said he was in the insurance business and lived at 410 Yates avenue, the Bronx.

When he was asked if he had ever been a candidate for public office, an objection by Reilly was sustained.

Wilentz asked Farber where he was on the night of April 2, 1932, about 10 p. m. That was the night Dr. John F. Condon paid the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom at St. Raymond's cemetery.

"I was at the premises of Levine Brothers, who have a restaurant at 1350 Sixth avenue, Manhattan," said the witness.

Wilentz asked Farber if he had been driving an automobile on that night. The witness said that he had and that he had a collision.

Q-Whose car did you collide with? A-With a car driven by one Ben Heier.

Heier is a youth who testified he was in a parked car that night just outside St. Raymond's cemetery, sitting with a girl named Judy Schwartz, now dead, and that he saw a man jump over the cemetery wall.

Heier identified the man as Lazar Fisch.

Sure of Night, He Testifies

Farber told Wilentz the accident occurred about 10 p. m. on Sunday, April 2, 1932, at the intersection of avenue between 64th and 65th streets. This is about eight miles from St. Raymond's cemetery.

Two Discredit Carstrom's Story

Wilentz called Arthur Larson, a painter, who testified that on the day of the kidnapping he was working on a house for "Mr. Christensen" in Duellen, N. J.

With him was working Elvert Carstrom, he said.

Carstrom, testifying for the defense, had said he was in Frederick's restaurant in the Bronx on the night of March 1, 1932, and saw Hauptmann.

Larson declared emphatically that Carstrom spent that night in Duellen, so could not have been in the Bronx.

Reilly in cross-examination attempted to discredit Larson's memory by asking him what he was doing on other dates in 1932. Larson was rather vague in his answers.

Hilbert Christensen of New York next took the stand. He substantiated Larson's story by saying that Carstrom and Larson were both working for him in Duellen, N. J., on March 1, 1932.

Mrs. Glenison, who was awarded a divorce by Judge Frederick J. Dillon in the uncontested session, said her husband was sober only two weeks in a year. She now lives in Roxon street, Dorchester.

"He went through $100,000 in three years," she testified, spending the money on liquor and women. He blackened my eyes, threatened me and chased me out of the house many times."

Mrs. Helen E. Barrows, of Dorchester, testified that she was duped by her husband, John, for a year and a half after their marriage.

"He asked me to go to Europe for a few months so that he could get enough money together to furnish a house," she said, "that a year and a half later I called him, and found that he had moved with the woman he was living with."

"He visited me off and on, and was cruel several times during the visits."

Judge Dillon awarded her a divorce, and her maiden name of Helen E. Snow.

CASERUDY RECORDS
AIRED IN COURT

New York, Feb. 8.—The illness of Mrs. Webb Vallee today caused her counsel to rest abruptly and preannounced its case against her estranged husband Rudy Vallee.

The surprise move came after accountants established the net income of Vallee, both personal and corporate, at $120,000 to $130,000 annually during the years 1932, 1933 and 1934.

The session opened today with the romantic telephone conversations alleged to have taken place between Mrs. Vallee and "Garry" Leon, adagio dancer, being projected into the testimony.

Questioning Clarence E. Webb, Santa Monica, Calif., police chief and father of Mrs. Vallee, inquest attorney for Vallee, asked him if Benjamin Hartstein, attorney for Mrs. Vallee, had shown him an affidavit filed by the orchestra leader.

"Did Hartstein tell you that conversation your daughter had with 'Garry' Leon in which your daughter said she was 'sneaking up' and was ready to go with him on a steamboat?" Busch asked.

"No," replied the witness.

Denies "Nude" Talk

"Were you told that your daughter said to Leon, 'I'm dressed' . . . I'm in the nude . . . I'm wearing nudes," and Leon replied, 'To hell with the nudes, I'll take the body'?"

Webb heatedly said he knew nothing about the matter.

"To technical and tiring testimony concerning Vallee's financial status, was concluded with a serio-comic note."

"If Rudy should die today," exclaimed his attorney, Hyman Busch, his voice faltering, "he would have to pay $80,000 to $85,000 in taxes to the Government."

Thomas I. Shucklin, counsel for Mrs. Vallee, who is seeking more maintenance money from the orchestra leader, expressed profound solicitude for Vallee's well.

"We don't want him to die today," Sheridan said.

Then he rested his case, explaining: "Mrs. Vallee is confined to her home under medical care and this concludes the plaintiff's case."

Rudy Tries Record

The move greatly agitated Busch.

After spluttering and prancing about he requested a recess until 2 p. m. during which to prepare a motion. He did not disclose what his motion would be.

The courtroom quickly cleared after the rapid succession of surprising developments but Vallee tarried.

He went up to the phonograph on which his records of conversations involving his wife had been played and put a record on but no music—were heard from the wheezy machine.

DOLL LADY

Defense Rests
IN KILLING

Salem, Feb. 8.—The defense today rested its case in the trial of Edward Sobocienski, 23-year-old Peabody leather worker, accused of the second degree murder of Mrs. Florence Pierce, 48, known as Peabody's "Doll Lady."

Sobocienski's lawyer, Philip J. Durkin, called two witnesses, the accused and Dr. Philip J. Finnegan of Salem.

Sobocienski said that he had been drinking with Mrs. Pierce and that she had suggested that they go into an alley. They had been there about 20 or 25 minutes when he said, she felt.

He said that she was so intoxicated that he left her to get a cup of coffee.

He did not learn of her death, he said, until the next afternoon. Under cross-examination by District Attorney Tuck A. Gregg, the prisoner said that he had lied to State Detective Griffin because he "did not want to please him."

Dr. Finnegan testified that it was possible for a drunken person to fall from a standing position and shatter the nose bone.

Judge Harold P. Williams then adjourned court. Final arguments will be heard Monday.

SLAIN IN COSMOS CLUB

"Beano" Breen said he found slain ex-convict Sweeney

JOSEPH "RED" SWEENEY

Found body "in gutter."

The following conversation ensued:
"Is Mario there?"
"No."
"This is Barney. Is this Joe?"
"No."
"What's doing?"
"Nothing."
"Well, I'm coming right over. I'll be there in a couple of minutes."
Sergeant Frank Stiney and Inspectors William Donovan and Kelley, who were in the street doorway to wait.
A few minutes later Barney Gouner drove up in a car. He was taken into custody as he stepped into the doorway. Police said an automatic pistol was found in his pocket.

Questioned at Station 4, Gouner said he was a brother of John Gouner who was implicated by police some time ago in a Cambridge case with Sweeney.
John Gouner died recently in a tuberculosis hospital in Plymouth county. The case against him was not pressed.
Sweeney and John Gouner were indicted April 28, 1931, charged with assault with intent to rob Albert Noble, Jr., a war veteran, in his apartment on Harvard street, Cambridge.
The Middlesex County record shows Sweeney was never apprehended for arraignment.
But the Cambridge police sent a patrolman to Boston today with the capias—for the man on the morgue slab.

Frank Thomas, garage man, was questioned after he allegedly told a group of taxi drivers that the shooting took place near the Cosmos Club, and said of the victim:
"That's the fellow who ran amuck two days ago."
He told police he was at his garage on Broadway near the club when he heard two shots. He said he saw a man and woman running and asked them what had happened. They told him:
"There's a man shot up on Winchester street."

Sweeney first was identified as John Gouner of Cambridge boulevard, Dorchester, from a gas bill in his pocket.
Dorchester police were sent to that address and found a woman, about 35, who said she was Mrs. Rita Clark. She and a boy in the house were told to dress and then were taken to the hospital morgue.
There the woman identified Sweeney as Joseph Clark, her husband. Another man who fed the body identified it as that of Joseph Clark, his nephew.
The woman was questioned by Inspectors William Bonner and Arthur Tieran. Bonner produced a picture of Sweeney.
"That's Red Sweeney, isn't it?"
"Yes, it's Joseph Red Sweeney, my husband," said the woman. She told them:
"I don't know anything about it. I'm not saying anything. I don't want my throat cut."

She said she married Sweeney in New York in 1920. She is an attractive blonde. The boy with her, she said, was her nephew. He told nothing.
Two brothers named O'Connell also were being questioned.
Sweeney apparently had been slugged twice on the head and punched on the chin. The bullet that killed him shattered his breast bone.
Police were at a loss to ascribe a motive for the murder. They said it may have resulted from a gang war over narcotics or slot machines or other gambling.
There also might be a connection with recent leather hijackings, police added.
They also were at a loss to explain why Sweeney had never been apprehended on the indictment warrant issued for him in 1931.

His home in Dorchester was searched for narcotics by Sergeant Wayland H. Blanning.
None were found, but in a dresser drawer was a loaded .45 army pistol, loaded in 1931. The serial numbers had been partially filed off.

CONNERY Hits Envoy DANIELS

AS MEXICAN TYRANTS AIDE

Washington, Feb. 8—Ambassador Josephus Daniels was accused today by Representative Connery (D-Mass.) of "co-operating with the tyrants of Mexico to enslave the Mexican people."

In a speech on the House floor the labor committee chairman demanded that the United States withdraw recognition of the Mexican government.

"Liberty of religious worship, of education, of speech, and of the press are denied all who live in Mexico," he said.
Connery had this to say of Daniels:
"Mr. Speaker, I believe that the Honorable Josephus Daniels and other representatives of the American government in Mexico, who for some unknown reason are co-operating with the tyrants of Mexico to enslave the Mexican people, should be summoned back to the United States and forced to tell the truth of the conditions which exist in that country at this time."

Mexico, he charged, has violated an agreement by which the United States, in the Wilson administration, recognized the Mexican government with a specific reservation that all Mexicans be granted freedom to worship.

"It is the duty of Congress, the duty of the State Department," Connery declared, "to notify the Mexican government that they, having violated the agreement, we on our part, to be consistent, are forced to withdraw further recognition and to withdraw from that country any representatives we may have there."

Pointing to what he described as ample precedents for interfering below the border, Connery asserted this country never had qualms about interference when the interests of American corporations were at stake.

'PAUPER' Pay in Relief FOUGHT

SENATORS WAR ON ROOSEVELT

By International News Service

Washington, Feb. 8.—Senate squabbling over the 4880 million dollar work-relief bill today developed into a contest to force payment of prevailing wage scales on all government relief projects.

The appropriations committee voted the pay section on President Roosevelt's opposition and it appeared the Senate might support organized labor on this issue.

There were indications the coalition of committee members attacking the bill would try again to have the committee strike out the 4000 million-dollar work appropriation and add 2000 million dollars to the $880,000,000 asked by Mr. Roosevelt for direct relief.

The committee has defended this counter plan, but returning advantages may change the result if another vote is taken.

Leaders predict the Senate will stand by the President in the work appropriation. But they were not so certain about the outcome of the fight over prevailing wages. In his message to Congress, Roosevelt said:

"Compensation on emergency public projects should be in the form of security payments, which should be larger than the amount now received as a relief rate, but at the same time not so large as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment or the leaving of private employment to engage in government work."

His advisers proposed a $50 maximum monthly wage. Advocates of the "prevailing wage level" plan denounced the President's proposal as a "pauper wage." They charged it would destroy wage levels all over the nation.

They insisted the government pay prevailing wages, even though the relief worker's hours be slashed to a point where he could earn only $50 a month.

The prevailing wage amendment was supported by Senators McAdoo, California; Copeland, New York; and Truman of Missouri, all Democrats.

COURT WEIGHS Disbar Plea

Judge John C. Crosby, in Superior Court, today heard and took under advisement a petition for the disbarment of Attorney John F. Callahan, of Boston.

Nelson B. Vanderhoof, of the law firm of Clark, Vanderhoof and Little, testified that Callahan worked as a clerk and collector for seven years before he was admitted to the bar on October 22, 1920.

Following the deaths of two partners in September, 1933, Vanderhoof had the books audited, and found a shortage of $2200. Callahan, Vanderhoof testified, signed a confession that he misappropriated the money. In August, 1934, Vanderhoof said Callahan broke into the office at 54 State street, and took $21 from the safe.

ARMORED TRUCK Stolen, Abandoned

Springfield, Feb. 8.—An armored American Railway Express truck, parked in front of the Third National Bank, Main street, was stolen by bandits today and a few minutes later abandoned when they discovered it contained no bank funds.

'Joy-Ride' With Dead

Police believe that this girl, Grace Curran of Kalamazoo, Mich., rode, unknowingly, in a car containing the body of murdered Robert Brown. The alleged driver of the car, Clarence Frechette of Kalamazoo, is under arrest in California, where he is claimed to have taken the corpse. Michigan authorities, seeking extradition of the prisoner, are obtaining Miss Curran's testimony. She says she went 'joy-riding' with Frechette. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

DANCED After KILLING

SAYS CARRIER OF DEAD MAN

By Associated Press

Nevada City, Cal., Feb. 8.—Clarence Frechette, a man in Michigan and carried the body to California by auto, insisted today he was not sorry for what he had done.

"I'd have done it again," said the 25-year-old "flying bandit," as he told of the fight that led to the death of Robert Brown, 24, of Kalamazoo, "and if I hadn't, somebody else would have."

Frechette told Captain Joseph Blake of the state highway patrol Brown had boasted of intimacies with the accused slayer's "girl."

He even went to a dance at Salt Lake City, leaving the machine and its cargo of death on the street nearby. He told of hiding up two drug stores and a restaurant in Denver for "expense money."

He brought three passengers from Salt Lake City, chatting with them and playing the car radio. Even on the night of the slaying, Frechette told Captain Blake, he went to a movie.

Frechette's need for money led to his arrest. He sent a telegram to Brown's father in Kalamazoo, Mich., signing it "Robert," and asking him to forward $50. The father notified California authorities.

The fugitive's unrepentant companion was released.

GOODWIN Opposes Plane CONTROL SHIFT

Frank A. Goodwin today made his first appearance before a legislative committee since re-assuming his duties as registrar of motor vehicles.

He opposed a bill to remove supervision of airplanes from the registry division and to place them under the control of an unpaid commission of five members to be appointed by the governor. Mr. Goodwin declared that he has all ways been opposed to commissions without salaries as in the long run the state gets only about what it pays for.

Crocker Snow, member of the National Association of State Aviation Officials, in favoring the measure, declared that the bill was based on recommendations of a federal aviation commission and designed to bring about uniform regulatory aviation laws. Twenty-three of the states have approved the code now, he said.

Love Letters of Napoleon

SADDENED, HE CHIDES JOSEPHINE

BONAPARTE DESPAIRS OF LOVE WHILE CONQUERING WORLD

By HENRIK WILLIAM VAN LOON

Author of "The Story of Napoleon," "The Story of the Battle of Waterloo," and "The Story of the French Revolution."

THESE are the main facts connected with the French Revolution.

In May, 1789, King Louis XVI called together a meeting of the representatives of all the people to help him save the country from immediate bankruptcy.

It was now up to the people who paid the taxes. But as the privileged classes were willing to go the limit in the making of sacrifices, provided of course that they were not called upon to surrender any of their own privileges, nothing came of this gathering of the ancient Estates General.

Bad faith on the part of the Queen and her followers and good-natured stupidity on the part of the King had done the rest, until there had been a complete end to all established form of government.

The highest power in the state had become a sort of headless giant, which passed from hand to hand until at last it fell into the possession of the only group of men who had the courage of responsibility, the revolutionary leaders of Paris.

In January 1793 King Louis and the Queen were beheaded. France was left to the mercy of a mob of men who had no idea of what the world had been. But the forces of the Revolution had ever been able to make the attack made upon them from all sides, was something which they themselves were not a world away to make.

But they managed to make it through these first days of the French Revolution and still to maintain a certain measure of order and discipline. Finally they had started upon a course of attack, directed, with some success, against the world of the day.

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE

There was to be found in French soil.

Only one power still had its hand in the fight and that was Austria, coming under the influence of the French Revolution, the late Queen Marie Antoinette.

And so in the Spring of 1796, Austria decided upon one final blow of the day.

It was then that Napoleon Bonaparte appeared upon the scene. A few weeks later, his army was in the field.

Napoleon as Cadet

Miserable Youth

His father, Carlo Bonaparte, had been a successful lawyer and a brilliant politician. When young Napoleon was born, the island of Corsica had been only one year in the possession of France.

The family had been in other circumstances, and they had to make use of their skills in a French military academy.

The years he was so miserable, but he never lost the influence of the Academy's studies. But his extraordinary intellect and his extraordinary will made him a great leader.

It was then that he had a chance to make himself known to the world. He was elected to the committee of Public Safety, the committee of the French Revolution.

Convinced that the French Revolution was the only way to save the world, he was in the hands of a group of men who had been able to maintain themselves in the midst of the French Revolution.

But for four years he was in the hands of the French Revolution, and he was in the hands of the French Revolution.

Paired Watch

Sold Books

It was during this period that he had been forced to pawn his watch and even to sell his hand at selling books on the revolutionary plan.

But the great day came a year later when the French Revolution was in its full swing. He was in the hands of the French Revolution.

Looking for a suitable book, he found a book which was in the hands of the French Revolution.

With a few words of grace, he was in the hands of the French Revolution.

On May 10th, only one month after the victory of the French Revolution, Napoleon caught up with the Austrians who were trying to make a definite stand against the French Revolution.

After the battle of the French Revolution, the bridge that spanned the river in the village of Lodi, Napoleon pushed through the Austrian lines until he was able to enter the city of Milan.

It was then that Napoleon conceived his brilliant idea of con-

ROMANCE DIED, HE KNOWS, BUT SENDS KISSES

In the Alps at a time when most of the armies were still asleep, covered with snow.

Nevertheless, this bold plan to conquer the Austrians that they desired themselves to do for peace. Napoleon was willing to do it.

A preliminary treaty was signed in London on April 10, 1797, followed on September 4 by the dramatic peace of Campo Formio.

By this peace treaty Austria ceded Belgium to France and she ceded most of her territory in the western part of Italy.

In the light of this enormous success, due to the genius of the French commander-in-chief, the following letter written by Napoleon to his wife while he was in the valley in the Alps became doubly interesting.

And the same hand that has just signed the most favorable peace treaty in the history of France has even signed lastly a letter to his wife, a letter which was written by himself, among the snowy country houses of the Alps.

ASTOR WIDOW UPSET BY FIERMONTE WIFE NO. 1

LATTER STILL IN LOVE WITH HIM

By Associated Press
Naples, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte became semi-hysterical today when she learned that her husband, the former boxer, had met Mrs. Fiermonte No. 1 in Genoa.

She repeated over and over that she could say nothing that she knew nothing about the matter, and that she did not know what her plans would be. Yesterday she had said confidently that she would meet Enzo on the French Riviera after they both left Italy.

By Associated Press
Rome, Feb. 8.—Toss Fiermonte, first wife of Enzo, declared herself

ENZO FIERMONTE MRS. MADELINE FORCE DICK ASTOR FIERMONTE
She's Alarmed Over His First Wife

hopeful today that her former husband would leave his American millionaire spouse and return to her.

"I am still his wife under Italian law," she said after returning here from Genoa, where she saw the former pugilist.

"When I met him in Genoa, he was very happy to see me and our child."

"There were tears in his eyes."

We went in a cafe and spent some hours together. Yes, I still love him dearly.

"I think he loves me. He may come back to me, but not immediately."

As for Fiermonte's reported concern that his previous marriage might involve him in legal complications, Toss declares she had no intention of bringing charges against him.

EUROPEAN Plight Told in COSMOPOLITAN

Those Americans who hope to better their lot by revolution will get no consolation from the analyses of the states of mind of the average man in revolutionary Russia, Germany and Italy as compared with the American John Doe.

This remarkable feature appears in the March issue of the Cosmopolitan magazine, now on Boston news stands.

Walter Dursant, noted correspondent, finds that the average Russian is torn between the old and the new regime. Fannie Hurst, the novelist, finds the German teaching his children the safety of conformity. Vincent Sheean, another newspaperman, finds the Italian a pacifist, unimpressed by the achievements of Il Duce.

Morris Markes, on the other hand, finds the average American opposed to revolution and enjoying a far higher standard of living than his brothers.

SMILE ESSENTIAL TO IDEAL NURSE

Brains Help

MANY UNSUITED TO JOB, SAYS PROFESSOR

It is the girl with the smile and a sense of humor and abundant health, intelligence and more than superficial training in medicine who makes the ideal nurse.

Miss Marjory Stimson, assistant professor in public health nursing at Simmons College, picturing the ideal nurse at a session of the New England Hospital Association, now in convention at the Hotel Bradford, bemoaned the fact that too many public health nurses are not temperamentally suited to their jobs.

She said: "Too many nurses have not the right personality. Too many of them are intolerant of persons with whom they must work and whom they must serve if they are to do their job properly."

Too Intolerant

"Too many of them graduate from training schools with a dictatorial, intolerant attitude toward persons whom they think know less about nursing than they do."

There are many assets which the ideal nurse should have. For instance, she should have abundant physical health; she should be sensitive to the needs of all kinds of patients. She should have intelligence of a high order. She should come from a proper group in the high schools. Too many hospitals have training schools for nurses because it is the cheapest way to nurse patients. They are not thinking too much of the student who believes she has chosen a life work.

600 Needed

"Massachusetts needs about 600 new nurses a year, but actually we are graduating over twice as many. Unemployment in other fields has much to do with this general increase in the numbers of student nurses. Strangely we are getting very few college women in the field of nursing. Perhaps soon we will invoke a new system of selection of student nurses in order to make more adequately our responsibility to the community."

GIRL, 10, HURT In Car Crash

X-Rays were to be taken today at Cambridge City Hospital to determine the extent of the injuries received by Mary A. McGrath, 10, four months in the front of a Boston Elevated street car on Cambridge street, Cambridge, after collision between an auto and the trolley.

Neither the motorist nor the driver of the machine knew how she got there. She is the daughter of John McGrath, a postal employee, living at 1132 Cambridge street.

"SILK HAT" John Very Ill

Conant Latin Ban Hit As Materialists' Heresy

Classic thunder rumbled today over the elms of Harvard Yard.

The storm centered around Chemist-President James Bryant Conant's recent pronouncement for the abolition of the Latin requirement for a Harvard A. B.

The strongest lightning bolt today was a 10-page printed letter sent by two anonymous Harvard men to University Hall in bitter protest against the abandonment of the classics. Copies went also to every member of the faculty.

Rather than abolish Latin, Harvard grant three degrees, the pamphlet letter suggests. A. B. for those who meet the Latin requirement; S. B. for those trained in scientific knowledge; and a third and more dubious degree for those whose enthusiasm is roused neither by the language of Homer or the formulas of the modern laboratory.

The letter blames the present sorry state of the world on nineteenth century materialism and the decline of classic learning. Science and reason, the writer asserts, made the battle of a broader wisdom.

'19th Century Heresy' "They see no merit in making our students prodigies of information, a horrid little heresy inherited from the nineteenth century."

It will meet a fate similar to that of Greek in the secondary schools if Harvard expects to claim it, they say. Since Harvard dropped the Greek requirement, the language has virtually disappeared from preparatory curricula.

"We can interpret our present plan to abolish the Latin requirement," says the letter to Dr. Conant, "only as one more step to surrender another objective to those who would measure the worth of everything we do by its material, exchange value."

At University Hall it was indicated that there would be no change in the attitude of President Conant.

"LOST" BABY Near Death

While City Hospital attendants fought for the life of five-week-old "Mary Johnson," police continued today search for her mother. The child is on the danger list. The baby girl was last taken from the home of John Miller, of Cornhill street, Roxbury, by a boarding house of John Miller, of Cornhill street, Roxbury, by a woman named Mary Johnson. She said she'd be back the next day to pay for the board, but did not return.

IDAHO APPROVES Child Labor Law

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 8.—Idaho became the 23rd state to ratify the federal child labor amendment when the House adopted a Senate-approved resolution 37-21.

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 8.—Kansas legislators for a fifth time rejected the proposed child labor amendment. The vote in the House of Representatives was 71 to 40.

KAMINSKI Still Hopeful, HAS VISITORS

Downcast but still hopeful that he escape the chair, Alexander Kaminski, scheduled to be electrocuted the week of February 17, received today at State Prison his first outside visitors since he arrived in Charlestown on January 10.

A brother, Walter Kaminski, of New Britain, Ct., was his first visitor and spent half an hour with the condemned man who was moved into Cell No. 1 of the death house last night.

Later, a brother-in-law, Fred Papin, was also allowed half an hour with Kaminski, who will die for the killing of a prison guard during a break from Hampden County jail.

Another visitor was the Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, Catholic chaplain at the prison.

2 Gangsters Shot

Chicago, Feb. 8. (AP)—Two reputed members of Chicago's "12" gang were shot and fatally wounded today when they were attempting to kidnap and extort $500 from Louis Kaplan, auto sales agent. Tony Prina, 42, was killed and Vito Messina, 28, wounded.

Guide to New Books

By Miles Alden

THE MURDER OF MY AUNT—By Richard Hull—Milton, Mass. "Hull's assignment for the editor of a book return is to review a mystery story. The more he tells his readers about any other book, the better they will like it. But let him apply that formula to a 'mystery' and he spoils all the fun."

However one would be remiss in one's duty if one allowed this book to fall into a reader's hands without a word of warning. There is much in the story about a Weich place called Lived.

Now anyone can see what a strain it would be on the intelligence of the State Department of Mental Diseases if at one and for some time several thousand readers were tried to pronounce that name! So, before you turn to page one, make sure that you can resist temptation to pronounce so material a word as Lived.

About the story, we will only say that it is about a rather nasty fellow who killed his Aunt Mildred—or did he?—and that Dorothy Segre, who knows her crime stories, is as "Omibus" readers can testify, filled it very much.

That might be a recommendation enough.

MODERN HOUSING—By Catherine Bauer-Hughes, Muffin. Announcement of Secretary Weeks' $5,000,000 South Boston housing project makes this very comprehensive book by Miss

TRUST Laws to Be ENFORCED

By Universal Service

Washington, Feb. 8.—A return to the old policy of strict Federal enforcement of anti-trust laws was understood to be a part of President Roosevelt's program for continuing the NRA.

Under the original act, which the administration will ask be extended for another two years, the anti-trust laws were practically suspended. This suspension was sharply attacked by Senators Joseph of Idaho and Sweeney of North Dakota, who charged that the "little fellows" were being driven out of business.

No change in section 7, the collective bargaining feature of the bill, is desired by the administration, according to congressional leaders.

Request to Harvard

Harvard University is to receive the honorary degree of Mrs. Mary G. Arnold, of Summit, N. J., widow of Chester H. Arnold, of the class of 1892, for the establishment of a scholarship in memory of her husband for the study of French, Italian and other languages, and for the study of contemporary civilization. The will was pronounced here today at Elizabeth, N. J.

ELOPER Wins Battle WITH 'MOTHER'

Rockville, Md., Feb. 8.—George Scarlett, the chauffeur who eloped with the daughter of the family he worked for, faced his socially prominent mother-in-law's charge of theft in police court here and a few moments later walked out a free man.

After listening to Mrs. Howard E. Scarlett, the chauffeur's mother-in-law, who charged her son-in-law with the theft of her jewelry, is equal to the denial of the defendant.

"This case is evidently a family affair. The veracity of the prosecuting witness, who charges her son-in-law with the theft of her jewelry, is equal to the denial of the defendant."

Oakie, Doe

New York, Feb. 8.—Anyone who means "Oakie, Doe," when he says yes, said Dr. Frank H. Feltz, the lexicographer, has a mental age of not more than ten years.

Dr. Feltz expressed horror when informed that a witness had used the expression in a Seattle courtroom. He let it be understood that he didn't want to hear such barbarisms around his dictionary factory.

BANDIT Finds Victim BAD MEDICINE

If the bandit's union has anything in the nature of an information bureau, it had best spread the word to steer clear of Michael Riley, night attendant at a gasoline filling station at Broadway and the Northern Artery, Somerville.

So little sweet was Riley today when a bandit thrust a gun into his face that Riley, with a left-hand punch, nearly floored the stranger. But the bandit came back to beat Riley over the head with the weapon, snapping it off at the handle.

Not to be outdone, Riley seized water can and flailed his energetic visitor so lustily that the bandit took off across Boston Post playground and vanished in the vicinity of Jacques street.

Riley, whose head was treated at Somerville Hospital for cuts, but who returned to work, told police his visitor was about 25 years old, was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed about 150 pounds, wore white shell glasses and had on a gray overcoat and light felt hat.

Police found the gun hidden in the floor and said that it was either a toy gun or a cheaply made weapon.

It's quite simple to find a good used car bargain by watching the Automobile-for-Sale columns of the American and Advertiser each and every day.

26 BROKERS

May Fail in

"PEPPER POOL"

By International News Service
London, Feb. 8.—With mysterious "pepper potatoes" under his pepper pool campaign, greatest attempt to corner any market in recent English financial history, brokers strove to avert the collapse of 26 brokerage houses.

The General Produce Brokers Association stayed off the day of reckoning for speculators in the $2,000,000 combine by pronouncing a moratorium until Monday, but failure of Bishirgian's house, the old firm of James and Shakespeare, Ltd., was already an accomplished fact.

A similar crisis in the shell market is now believed to have been halted with the intervention of the powerful tobacco securities trust.

Led by Bishirgian's firm, the combine was formed in 1923 to corner the pepper market. At that time pepper stocks in Britain totalled only 1929 tons and white pepper sold at 12 cents a pound.

The pool pushed the price as high as 25 cents a pound. Stocks rose to 18,000 tons, involving $2,000,000. With shipments due to arrive here, more than 30,000 tons of black and white pepper will be stored in London warehouses enough for more than three years.

LONG'S STOOGES

Loses Appendix

New Orleans, Feb. 8 (AP)—Joe Meador, chief bodyguard for Senator Huey P. Young, today underwent an operation for appendicitis at Toussaint infirmary here, it was stated by his physician.

Meanwhile police had made no attempt to serve him with a capias charging him with assault upon Louis Trier, Associated Press photographer, with intent to kill.

Trier, witnesses said, was punched in the jaw and slugged over the head by Meador when he took a picture of Senator Long last Friday as Long stepped off a train from Washington.

DRAFTSMAN REPORTS

"Camels bring back the feeling of mental alertness that a draftsman needs. And never yet have they given me any sign of ragged nerves." (Signed) FRANKLIN DOMINICK

"THE FIRST TIME I ever smoked a Camel, I 'fell hard' for their mild, rich taste," says this expert tree surgeon. "Camels help to relieve tiredness after a hard day's work." (Signed) H. L. VOUGH

STORE MANAGER SAYS:

"When I'm tired, I smoke a Camel and my energy revives. I call a Camel 'the smoke that cheers.' Camels never jangle my nerves." (Signed) GEORGE F. STAFFORD

TO RELIEVE FATIGUE...

• Above: Jack Shea, a champion speed skater from the age of 10. Especially memorable are his brilliant victories in the 500 and 1500 meter Olympic events.

He says: "Any one who goes in for speed skating needs an abundant supply of stamina and energy. I feel pretty well used up after the last hard sprint to the tape. When people mention my being a cigarette smoker, I correct them and say, 'I'm a Camel smoker.' Camels restore my 'pep' when I've used up my energy. The 'lifting' effect is noticeable in a few minutes. Camels taste so good. Smoking Camels never disturbs my nerves. And for sheer pleasure, there's nothing like a Camel." (Signed) JACK SHEA

CENSOR 'Ridiculous' Here, SCOFFS LEWIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Lewis, who has been called a "censor" by some of his critics, scoffed at the charge today.

"What might be one man's morals might not be another's," Lewis said. "I am not a censor. I am a writer. I write what I want to write."

He said he was not interested in the opinions of his critics and that he would continue to write as he saw fit.

HAPPY IN DEATH SORRY HE 'CAME BACK'

"DEAD" MAN LIVES TO TELL

(Copyright, 1933, By Universal Service)

London, Feb. 8.—Britain has an unwilling Lazarus, a man snatched back from death, only to regret his return from the "beyond," because there he saw his dead wife and she was happy.

"I do not wish to appear ungrateful to the gods, but I had not brought me back. I was very happy where I was. I think that when people are dead they should have them. I did not think so once, but now I am afraid, but having tasted death I am afraid to leave it."

"I suddenly found myself in a room, much bigger than any room I have ever seen. It must have been night, for the room was lighted very clearly. The light was brighter than electric light, yet somehow it was soft, a comforting sort of light. Where the light came from I do not know, for I did not notice any lamps."

SNOW Buries 4 Men 1 DIES

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—A blizzard which hit the city last night has buried four men and killed one.

"I am interested in the people in the room. There were a lot of them, thousands I should think. And they were all grown up men and women."

"I saw other people I used to know on earth. They were all people who had passed away. When someone died in the room began to change. It was as though daylight was coming. 'I don't remember any more'."

By HIRAM PERCY MAXIM
(Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate)

There's a man on first base! The pitcher winds up and delivers the ball, and the batsman knocks a sharp bounding grounder.

The shortstop dives across the diamond to field the ball, the man on first races to second, while the batsman makes a dash for first!

The shortstop must make a mighty effort to reach the ball. It is a hard run for him, and there is doubt whether he can make it.

Unable to catch the ball, he reaches forward with both hands and arms, to feel into the hands of the batsman who has come up to cover for him.

The batsman, catching the ball with his foot or his hand, is up on his feet, and a dash for home is made. The entire process takes place in six seconds.

Action Analyzed

The mechanism which is used in the action of the shortstop's mind with awe. An analysis of what went on in the mind of the bat, next, he saw the ball start.

The "mechanism" set by his eyes, and by his feet, the batsman had to be sure that the ball was in his hands, and that he was in the right direction and at the right speed.

A batsman of a good ball, after the initial action, the batsman's eyes had to find the ball, and his feet had to be in the right position to catch the ball. The batsman's mind was in a state of alertness, and he was ready to catch the ball at any moment.

Exact Movement

While this complex performance was going on, the shortstop was running headlong with all his might to intercept the ball, which was bounding irregularly at high velocity.

He weighed his chances and

Messages Galore

It would be an exaggeration to say that the shortstop's mind was in a state of alertness, and he was ready to catch the ball at any moment.

Mother Held As Spy
Sees Son Again

New York, Feb. 8.—A mother who had not seen her son since she was taken prisoner by the French in Alsace-Lorraine during the World War was reunited with him.

Mrs. Rosa Hetzel, the mother of a son, was reunited with her son, Louis, of Strasbourg, N. Y., after a long separation.

Mrs. Hetzel was suspected by the French troops of being a spy when they captured the town of Mulhouse. She was sent to France, but afterward escaped to Italy.

Ernest, unable to find his mother, came to the United States in 1923. Two years ago he started searching for his mother in Alsace-Lorraine.

WALLACE FINDS 'LITTLE FELLOW'

Body Recovered Under Ice

VETERAN DIVER ADMITS DISCOVERY "GOT HIM"

Fred Wallace can take it, and does. But when it comes to little fellows limp in his rubber arms, it gets him in the heart.

The Somerville diver, a little man with a little nose, a little great big head, a little bit of a grin, admitted as much today.

It has been a long time since he was in the water. Once, in 1914, he was tangled in a net, and he was in the water for a long time. He was trapped in a net, and he was in the water for a long time.

Grins at Death

Death nods at him, and he grins. "But it got me yesterday—finding that little fellow in the pond in Arlington.

"I didn't think he was there. I thought he was probably tucked around somewhere. But I went down and I walked under the ice, and there he was. A little fellow—well, I got one a bit younger and one a bit older, and down there on the bottom, while nobody up top knew, I thought about it a little bit.

"I thought, 'What if he were mine? And then I knew I felt just about as bad as I would if he had been mine. And then I knew there were some things I couldn't take."

50th Body

Wallace yesterday recovered the body of the 50th victim of the ice. It was a young man, about 25 years old, who had been in the water for a long time. He was found in a pond in Arlington, and he was the 50th body recovered.

Wallace is a veteran diver, and he has been in the water for a long time. He has recovered many bodies, and he has been in the water for a long time.

Down 128 Feet

Among these were two bodies in the pond two years ago. And the body of the 50th victim of the ice. It was a young man, about 25 years old, who had been in the water for a long time. He was found in a pond in Arlington, and he was the 50th body recovered.

Wallace is a veteran diver, and he has been in the water for a long time. He has recovered many bodies, and he has been in the water for a long time.

Never Had Bends

Wallace never had the bends. He was a diver, and he was in the water for a long time. He has recovered many bodies, and he has been in the water for a long time.

Wallace is a veteran diver, and he has been in the water for a long time. He has recovered many bodies, and he has been in the water for a long time.

Life Lines Caught

"I saw that my lines, life and air, were caught in a tangle. I was in the water, and I was in the water for a long time. I was in the water, and I was in the water for a long time.

Wallace is a veteran diver, and he has been in the water for a long time. He has recovered many bodies, and he has been in the water for a long time.

Say Goodby to Homes

Candid Camera Looks On

MRS. ANNA CONDOS GEORGE CONDOS ANNA CONDOS "OOH, LOOK, NOBODY!"—This mother, found by the Candid Camera, must hunt for a flat where no snooty landlord objects to children. Her home must go to make room for Uncle Sam's new housing project. She is Mrs. Anna Condos of 62 Vale street, South Boston. The baby is George, 2, and the little girl is Anna, 5.

"I'LL BE THE DEATH OF ME!"—Is the dire prediction of William Fisher, 72, who must move from his home, 81 Newman street, South Boston, in order that the building may be razed to make room for model houses to be erected as a government project. "I've lived in South Boston for 50 years," Fisher says as the Candid Camera clicks.

MRS. ROSE MYRON HELEN JENKINS O.K. WITH THEM—These are young folks, unafraid of change. If the Candid Camera interprets their expression right, they're looking forward with a thrill to the transformation of their home neighborhood into a district of model residences. Helen Jenkins is pointing out a domed landmark to Mrs. Rose Myron of 301 East Ninth street, South Boston.

2 EAST BOSTON Women Hurt

Two East Boston women were hurt today when they were in a car accident. The car was traveling on a road, and it was involved in a collision with another vehicle. The women were injured, but they are expected to recover.

The accident occurred in the early morning hours, and the road was icy. The women were traveling in a car, and they were both hurt. The car was damaged, and the accident was a serious one.

Bill Withdrawn

A bill presented to the legislature for the purpose of providing for the care of the poor was withdrawn today. The bill was introduced by a member of the legislature, and it was intended to provide for the care of the poor.

The bill was withdrawn because it was felt that it was not in the best interests of the state. The member of the legislature who introduced the bill has decided to withdraw it.

CAPTION Contest

WINNER CAMBRIDGE MAN FIRST

John E. Thayer of 18 Creighton street, Cambridge, was judged the winner of the David Copperfield Caption Contest and as a result was awarded the first prize of $5.

George Edward Pitt of 371 West Canton street, Boston, and Marie Frances Ambrose of 15 Bennett circle, Lynn, won second and third prizes of $2.50.

The following five persons received 100 cents each: Mary L. Davis, 250 West Canton street, Boston; Marion L. Feltman, 449 Broad street, Lawrence; Flora Dawson, 110 Commonwealth avenue, Allston; Mrs. J. Parsons, 5 Ford street, Dorchester; Alice M. Danvers, 4 South Main street, Boston.

The contest was sponsored by the Boston Evening American, in conjunction with the showing of the gold medal picture of the episode, "The Death of Captain Copperfield," which had its first showing at the National Theatre last night.

Many of the competitors showed marked ability in the difficult task of composing captions. In addition to the above cash prizes, the American will award the following 25 winners, two guest tickets to the show at the National Theatre last night.

"Clive of India," costarring Ronald Colman and Lorena Young. Susan Mulesky, 30 Fern street, Boston; Leo Kelly, 28 Gibbons street, Somerville; Warren J. Sullivan, 20 Lee street, Salem; Ben Liva, 60 State street, Boston.

John J. Dineen, Jr., 23 Benton road, Somerville; Arnold Stephens, 12 Windsor road, Medford; Edith Reineck, 98 Carroll street, Watertown; Miss Marion Hamilton, 174 Orchard street, Woburn; John O'Brien, 244 Washington street, Dorch. Custodians Association To Mark 35th Anniversary

The Custodians Association of the Boston public schools will celebrate their 35th anniversary at a banquet February 18 at the Hotel Bradford.

Robert Joseph, president of the association, will discuss at the Washington House conference which he is attending.

The Murphy Club of Dorchester will conduct its annual football game at Intercontinental Hall, Dorchester, tonight. The committee is headed by Frank McLaughlin, Ralph Fennell, John Simmons and Frank Jannotti.

The Girls' High School Association will hold a bridesmaid and groomsmen ball at the Hotel Vendome, Cambridge, tonight.

On Monday evening a party will be held in South Boston at the St. Peter and Paul school hall to aid the Rev. Robert E. Lee in financing the work of the parish.

SCREEN STAR At Sports Show

Miriam Hopkins, blonde screen star, will appear at the Sports Show down in Providence, where she was recovering from a recent illness. As a result she was on her way to Boston today.

She will appear at the show at 4 p.m., where she will be the special guest of the Nova Scotian club.

Guest of honor at the field and stream exhibit tonight will be the German big game hunter, Count Mathias von Oppersdorf.

BRIGHTON GIRLS Hurt Coasting

Three young Brighton girls were reported in serious condition today after they had coasted into an auto. Catherine Knauer, 15, of 104 Dustin street had both legs broken. Catherine Mezure, 15, of 104 Dustin street suffered facial lacerations. Helen Conley, 14, of 104 Dustin street, in addition to cuts on the face and leg, suffered possible internal injuries. They were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

$50 Freeze

Chicago, Feb. 8.—It cost George Allen a $50 fine to have his motor freeze up twice in Detroit. He showed up late for grand jury duty.

"It's a legitimate excuse," Chief Justice Sullivan of the criminal court said, "but the failure to get grand jurors costs the taxpayers. I'll fine you the minimum for contempt, $50."

Dorothea Brown Makes Bow at Salem Tea

By BETTY ALDEN

A WITCH IS USUALLY believed to be a sour-faced individual, but we believe the faces of the legendary Salem witches were wreathed in smiles today with the realization that the traditions of real old Salem hospitality were observed at the coming out party of Dorothea Brown. . . . In the same old Colonial house on Essex street in which her mother, Mrs. Albert Storrs Brown, made her debut as a girl, there was a hum of activity as friendly neighbors came in to assist Mrs. Brown with the arrangement of decorations and the myriad details of the tea party. . . .

Miss Brown received her guests in a formal dress of gold metal cloth with a flaring skirt and long sleeves and her mother's dress was of black velvet threaded in gold, fashioned with a long-sleeved jacket and slight train. . . .

List of Pourers

MISS SALLY SABENS headed the pourers. . . . Her assistants were Miss Alison Chaplin, Miss Margaret Ives, Miss Mary Ives, Mrs. Paul R. Curtiss, Miss Constance and Miss Elizabeth Leighton, Mrs. John S. Bridges, 3d, Miss Joan Phippen, Miss Marietta Heard, Miss Cynthia Northey, Miss Margaret Nichols, Mrs. Llewellyn Howland, Mrs. Paul T. Haskell, Jr., Miss Patricia Farley and Miss Ann Thomas, a cousin of the hostess, who came on from Portland, Maine for the event. . . .

MARY IVES

At eight o'clock this evening, following the tea party, Miss Brown will entertain about forty friends at an informal buffet supper preceding the Hamilton Hall informal dance. . . . A few of Mr. and Mrs. Brown's friends will also dine with them. . . .

Miss Brown is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day School, Concord Academy and Katharine Gibbs. . . .

Pattons Leave for Honolulu

THOUGH COL. AND MRS. GEORGE PATTON of Hamilton (and wherever Uncle Sam dictates) love the life of the North Shore, where they have occupied Green Meadows for many summers, amidst their wide circle of family connections, they will have to forego the usual reunions next summer. . . . Colonel Patton has been transferred to Honolulu and accompanied by Mrs. Patton and their debutante daughter, Ruth, has already embarked for that base. . . .

Since Mrs. William Lawrence Wood of Cambridge joined the New Oxford Movement, she has spoken at many meetings throughout the country, but this week she made her first public appearance in New York and delivered a very interesting speech at the annual meeting of the group at the Plaza. . . .

Mrs. Wood is unusually qualified to know whereof she speaks, being the wife of a minister and sister of Mary Cova Canfield, a personage in social-literary circles. . . . She is the former Laura Canfield, of a family highly respected in the thoroughly aristocratic sets of Boston and New York. . . . The Rev. Dr. Wood is a brother-in-law of Louis Bromfield. . . . Being surrounded by such a family of celebrities, Mrs. Wood is naturally at home in any gathering of social and literary stars. . . .

Dorothea Newman to Wed in Spring

CALIFORNIA, WITH ITS sun and warmth, has just relinquished one member of Boston's young social set, only to gain another. . . . Polly (Madeline) Powers, has come back from San Francisco, where she has been visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Derrick C. Maturin, bubbling over with messages from the former Katherine Powers to her many Boston friends. . . . Polly and Katherine are daughters of Dr. and Mrs. George Powers of Beacon street. . . .

Dorothea Newman of Concord is just getting ready to start for the Golden Gate. . . . her marriage to Theodore Chase is scheduled for late spring. . . .

The snow-covered hills and dales of New England are too tame for an expert skier like Tom Dabney who will be off bright and early one of these days for Austria. . . .

If you want to hear how two good society Dorothea Newman sports stars sound on the radio, tune in to WEZ tonight at 10 o'clock to listen to Marshall Fabyan, Jr., and his bride (Sarah Balfrey) in a sports interview in the interests of the Emergency Campaign. . . .

Although there appears to be but a remote connection between tennis and the campaign, Mrs. Fabyan will point out that the character building agencies participating in the drive develop in children the stamina, courage and intelligence which they need to become good sportsmen and citizens. . . . Mr. Fabyan will talk about his athletic interest, squash, in the joint interview. . . .

After the broadcast, Mr. and Mrs. Fabyan will go on to the dance at the Chilton Club being given for Sue Crocker. . . .

Bellarmino Lecture

A grand gathering of members of the Mass. Margaret Dolan, Mar-jone Dowd and Beatrice Ewing of the second series being sponsored by the Bellarmine Academy of Boston. . . . The evening of the coming out party of Dorothea Newman at the Chilton Club in Chestnut Hill, to hear Rev. M. J. Ahern, S. J., speak on the Bellarmine of Colored Photographs. . . . Mrs. Joseph H. Balfrey presided. . . . Coffee was served under the direction of Mrs. Eileen O'Brien, Jr., assisted by Mrs. Thomas Connolly and Mrs. Bernard A. Pullman. . . . The guests were Mrs. Paul G. Kirk, Mrs. Daniel Daley, Mr. Frank G. Sullivan, Mr. John and Goodrich, Mr. William Cotting, Mr. William Drummer, Mr. Joseph Manning, Mr. J. J. McDonald, Mr. G. Ruge, Mr. Walter Falvey, and MISS CAROLYN SIMON and MISS FRANCES SEAVER. Two old friends who met at a ball in the proceedings of a recent young people's gathering to chat. Miss Carolyn Simon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Simon and Miss Frances Seaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Seaver, both of Brookline have been close friends since they were classmates at the May school.

Debutante Silhouettes Number Ten

THIS debutante was feted at a garden luncheon in Belmont last June, but her official presentation to society took place at the Oakley County Club in November. She attended Bradford, is now studying at Rutgers Nursery Training School and is tall, slender and blonde. She has a very talented sister who won the Carnegie Fellowship to Cambridge University two years ago. Do you know her? Miss P. G.: If you would care to have the original drawing of your silhouette, you may have it for the asking. The young lady who wore the top-hat in Wednesday's silhouette is Miss Virginia Tolman.

Primo Carnera Improves Shining Hour

BUSTED. HOUNDED BY CREDITORS and leaping of winning more than a living wage in the prize fight, Primo Carnera is trying to make a name for himself in the boxing ring by prize of his.

Austen Lake

Emilia's 4000-Pound Ache

A HALF-FORGOTTEN AGREEMENT has been placed on, by which Schmeling said he would fight Carnera for $100,000, or anything out of the attic trunk.

Max Baer, who made this compact direct with Carnera, but contracted private, with the Madison Square Garden, for some reason left the option laps.

But the Carnera fight has exploded the paper as prima-facie evidence that a breach of promise has been committed against the "Big Boy" requiring heart balm, as is the slang for the legal poultry, compounded of soothing cash and curing currencies.

Now Carnera, who is a little vague in most matters, can grasp this situation. When he was first imported to this country, he was hardly uncared on the dock, when a big, vulgar sheriff's deputy pasted a court warrant on his chin for having said, sweatheart words to a London waitress named Emilia Terani.

Primo's guilt, as he later learned to the tune of 4000 sterling, lay not so much in having said those sweatheart words, as in the fact that he scrawled them in his cramped, boyish penmanship, as an incriminating record of his passion.

"You are for me the dearest woman in the world," Primo had scrawled, in a carefree day when he was billed in Soho's music halls as the "Monster of Maul" and "Futiana's Frankenstein," while dragging down pin money for an evening's clumsy pawing and hippo shuffling.

Hearts and Dollars

WELL YOU SEE, THAT INNOCENT, tender message had no cash value in that flea-bitten day when Primo's wealth might have been floated on a cigarette paper.

And little Emilia Terani might have gone on slinging thin soaps and loaf heels to her costers and clerks, with never a heart flop for her flirtatious freak.

But ah! When Primo's big carcass was shoehorned into American dough, and his swarm of wisemen towed him on a nation-wide sucker tour, then Emilia began to ache from the flat of her pink soles to the tip of her skimpy scalp.

O, how she ached!

In fact a sympathetic British court decided that she ached just 4000 pounds worth.

That was an expensive experience, which the Carnera boosters were not likely to forget.

From that time on no lovely lady got within strutting distance of the ex-Italian street king, and wherever Primo went abroad, the boosters formed a flying wedge around their "wild ticket" and jammed two-downs through a broken field of despairing females.

If Carnera's love calls were unanswered, well men must weep and women must weep, and the sooner it's over the sooner the sleep.

Another Fateful Document

SO, WHEN IN 1931 MAX SCHMELING said to Primo Carnera of the world and the future, "I've got the same thing in the eyes of the Boosters."

You see, at the moment when Primo Carnera was in the position in the fight industry was similar to Emilia Terani's social plane in London's scho side show exhibit. It was the same who have since worn the Soho weight crown, and who are meant to fight Carnera for the Madison Square Garden if he is in the line.

You are, at the moment when Primo Carnera was in the position in the fight industry was similar to Emilia Terani's social plane in London's scho side show exhibit. It was the same who have since worn the Soho weight crown, and who are meant to fight Carnera for the Madison Square Garden if he is in the line.

Well, when the Garden let Schmeling's option lapse, and Sharkey knocked Max out under his title, the Boosters did not bother about the old agreement, which, like Primo's innocent, tender message to Emilia Terani, was a thing of the past.

Particularly as Primo Carnera was not the champion himself.

IF, ON THAT SULTRY June last summer, Max Baer had not hit Carnera so hard on the jaw that he busted Primo's ankle, or, if the state of the fight business had not snatched the question about rare beverages out of the Boosters' mouths, I wonder whether they ever would have thought of Schmeling's old agreement.

By now it must be well along around the clock, like Primo's innocent, tender message to Emilia, when she exhumed it at much the same age and offered it as evidence of heart-break, which is close kin to being financially busted.

Maybe, as the clergy say, there is compensation in all things so that now a New York jury may force Schmeling to refund what a London jury made Carnera pay his Soho sweetie.

Rangers' Winning Streak Broken by Americans

By Bill Grimes

It will be months before even his closest friends will, with any degree of safety, be able to mention "13" to Lester Patrick... After going through 13 games Americans.

The Americans built up a lead, 1-0, in the first period when Rangers scored four times in less than 12 minutes. With the count on the Americans, Sherry came up with his third goal of the game, and the Americans had broken their own records for the season.

With it was at war strength for the Rangers, for Harvey "Flash" Jackson was a prodigy, his left wing line after an absence of two weeks.

Example Club will show its wares in Brooklyn even Saturday. For playing an informal game with the Bruins, the A. A. U. officials had John Carrigan of the Bruins on the mat.

Recently young Joe Patrick played for New York. When he reported to the Olympics, the point was raised that he had violated the A. A. U. code.

When the amateur's pull was on the A. A. U., the powers that be will have nobody to blame for the fact that he was not a professional.

By now it must be well along around the clock, like Primo's innocent, tender message to Emilia, when she exhumed it at much the same age and offered it as evidence of heart-break, which is close kin to being financially busted.

ICE TEAMS TO CLASH TONIGHT

By Bill Connell

Basketball and hockey headline contests tonight serve as a colorful warm-up for the 40th annual B. A. A. interscholastic track games at the Garden tomorrow afternoon.

Some 50 schools, with an entry list of 427 boys, have entered the B. A. A. track classic. Near record performances in every event are expected.

St. John's Prep is the team favorite with Newark Prep, W. A. C. Academy and other noted prep schools cutting into the point pie.

Many high schools do not enter full teams in the B. A. A. meet, but enough school speed will be ready to make the going very difficult for their older prep rivals.

The Graceland-Boston League hockey series at the Arena tonight offers four good games.

In the opener, Roxbury Tech whips against Medford. Rindge upset Arlington on Saturday, and intend to hold its winning pace, to escape the league cellar.

Newton, in third place, expects to down Stoneham in the second game. Melrose, league leader, is the local choice over Belmont.

The underdog of the best ball of the night, Arlington, in second place, must fight to edge fourth place. Cambridge, team which is rolling again after a mid-season lull.

Quincy at Brockton heads the basketball program, with Quincy very much in need of the victory to retain its chance to enter the tournament. Brockton on home area is favored.

Henry Henry was the heavy weight division final in the first American A. A. amateur boxing bout without dropping a glove.

His opponent, Bill De Marzio, of Newwood, defeated, in the first round, a former South Portland high athlete who is looked upon as a heavy contender.

Good, a former South Portland high athlete who is looked upon as a heavy contender, was defeated in the first round by Henry Henry.

GREEN, DONOVAN, GOOD TO RACE TOMORROW

BITTER RIVALS AS SCHOOLBOYS; HOLD MANY RECORDS

BROWN WILL PRESS HORNBOSTEL

By Walter Kiley

A hurdlng rivalry which dates back to school-boy days will be renewed tomorrow night as Milton Green of Harvard, Johnny Donovan of Dartmouth and Phil Good of Bowdoin clash over the high sticks in the annual B. A. A. games at Boston Garden.

In the old days Green and Donovan, the one from Newton High and the other from Lawrence, took turns winning scholastic titles.

If Green won the Andover meet, Donovan would win the B. A. A. meet, and the Good occasionally squeezing in a runner-up honor.

Those boys hung up new records in the old ones with regularity. There have been local records in the B. A. A. which are held by Green and Donovan.

regard in which Johnson is held. Last, but by no means least, Fritz Pollard of Brown, a colorist in football and track. Pollard arrived at the Garden too late to compete in the Proust games, but as a last resort entered the dash where he reached the final. Pollard won the B. A. A. 45 yard high hurdles a year ago in six seconds. The world record is 5.47 seconds, held by Monty Wells and John Collier.

If Charlie Hornbostel is able to

NY TOES THE MARK

Shoort Johnson, Bill Bonthron, Eric Ny.

Ny, great 5000 yard runner, will make his second appearance in this country in the B. A. A. games Saturday. He was shown in a race with Bonthron in Gottenburg, Sweden, now in he pressed the Princeton ace to a new world record for the three quarter mile of 3.00.3. Johnson was the third man in the race.

Green shared either one or both of 2 minutes, 12 seconds in the 1000, and 26 miles, 355 yards. It will be because of the presence of the two runners, the Kansas, and Waldo Sweet of the Amesbury, that the B. A. A. meet will be a memorable one.

Stabilization enthusiasm and gold standard advocacy must have been taken aback by Frank A. Vanderlip's statement to the Senate cultural committee.

The former head of the New York City Board of Education told the legislators that the standard will never be restored. And as for stabilization, "I apparently want nothing to do with it. In my opinion, the adequacy of a managed currency for the solution of world economic problems precludes consideration of stability such as the Federal Reserve authorities contemplate."

A black and white portrait of Frank A. Vanderlip, a man with dark hair, wearing a suit and tie, looking slightly to the right.

The market is one of the positions that account for the hair tearing among commentators. The market is a technical rally at a time when momentous new developments are in the air. The market is known. If favorable prices are easily earned a much fuller rate of return is possible than otherwise have. If unfavorable in this case, the rally could cut into the available rate of return proposed by the market. It follows. It isn't so much a question of what should be anticipated. It is of gambling what will.

Transfer If a favorable decision of the Supreme Court is expected, traders and investors should expect a rally. The rally is expected for January . . . But the rally of January with the market is, we think, an administrative error. The business is not a good thing. The story on these pages today. The suggestion of Eastern Mail is a good thing. The suggestion of Eastern Mail as a business man's investment looks better. . . . Most of the new things are new things. Opinion is unchanged.

A rigorous reduction in expenditures of railroads via a reduction of interest charges is envisioned by the Federal Reserve. The Federal Reserve's interest charges is the first step in its development. Not everyone is in favor of this move, but their financing in the best possible manner during the operation of the railroad is in the blame. That is even divided among the Federal Reserve banks. The first will be roads plenty of debt after the operation of the railroad. The second main point is the fund and retirement arrangements when selling new issues.

New York, Feb. 8.

The stock market made further headway today with gains running to 2 points in some instances.

Hopes of an early Supreme Court gold decision led to considerable activity, but traders unwilling to have open commitments with a decision possible at any time now.

Union Pacific, Atchafon and Pennsylvania scored gains running to 2 points.

American Can and DuPont were features of strength in the industrial group, the former up a point, while U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other pivotal shares recorded minor gains.

Utilities, however, lagged behind the rest of the market.

Liquor shares were strong under the leadership of National Distillers, which advanced 1 1/2 points, heavy. Leggett & Myers and Philip Morris were in demand in the tobacco group. General N. J. displayed a better tone in the oil,
